Quaker by birth, son of John William and Mary (Warner) Eblin. His family moved to Loudoun County, Virginia in 1762. Disowned by the Quakers many times, including twice for bearing arms in the War of the Revolution. Married twice, he was the father of at least 7 children, including Abijah, the only known child of his first marriage. Many report his burial as being in Copple Cemetery, however, "History of Walnut Hill: a Chronology" indicates the "Old Walnut Hill Cemetery" is Samuel's final resting place along with many by the name Copple.
